Dear Deputy Doublet

You said on a recent Jersey Radio interview that £75,000 is only equivalent to two salaries, I wish we had £75,000 a year. (I have just seen you on the 10 o'clock BBC news and felt I had to write.)

We are pensioners getting no interest, or next to nothing on what capital we have left and still have cost of living bills to pay, the same as working couples, the only difference is mortgages, but we did have to pay a mortgage and at a higher rate that folk pay now. Also pensioners are paying rent.

Why should the "tax payer" subside £75,000 + earners.
