

Hi Geoff

I was just wondering if you might be able to help me with something. I am an ex woollies employee and was told that i could only claim £10 a week from income support because my partner whom i live with earns to much money, At the time I thought this was a bit unfair why should she be expected to keep me after all she's work for that money and its hers but she's been very good and has tried to keep me up until now. I am on the sick for depression and have been since I left woollies and up until now my doctor has been very good to me to as in he hasn't bill me once and at my last appointment he said that income support could help me by paying my doctors bills for me while I was unemployed so I went down to ask about it and got told that if I'm not claiming income support then they cant help me at all so I'm a bit unsure what to do now as we are starting to struggle a bit with money and bill iv work all my life since iv left school and hate the fact that I'm having to ask for help off of anyone so please please if you no of anything that might be able to help get in touch.

Thanks for taking the time to read this
