

Dear Carol

could you please let me know more about the White Stork project which neither my colleagues nor I have heard or read about up to now. Also via Google I haven't found a source which would fit to our topic.

Regarding the mentioned ECOLOG report I'm afraid I can't deliver an English version. Unfortunately it is all written in German. But I found out that this report was just one out of four which were assigned to show how different institutes come to varying conclusions although they all have based their recommendations on the same information. For some reasons the very critical ECOLOG report is very often quoted without regard to the other three not so critical reports.

However, after all four reports were finished the Research Centre Jülich (http://www.emf-risiko.de/sitemap_e.html) organized a discussion between all four involved authors. I have just spoken to Prof. Wiedemann from Jülich who has a great experience in dealing with this issue and he agreed that I may forward his below mentioned contact data to you:

Name: Dr. Peter M. Wiedemann
Nachname: Wiedemann
Vorname: Peter M.
Position: Head of Programme Group Humans, Environments+Technology
Firma: Forschungszentrum Jülich GmbH

Adresse geschäftlich: 52425 Jülich
Deutschland

E-Mail: p.m.wiedemann@fz-juelich.de
E-Mail-Anzeigename: Peter M. Wiedemann (p.m.wiedemann@fz-juelich.de)

Assistentin: u.kappertz@fz-juelich.de

Please get in touch with him as he will be able to provide you with all necessary data and if appropriate also with a statement. If there is anything else I can do to support your information research please don't hesitate to contact me.

Best regards

Dear Thomas

thank you very much for coming back to us so quickly, if as discussed you could send some information on the peer review comments on the ECOLOG and the White Stork projects that would be much appreciated.

Kind Regards
