

Why on earth should people pay a premium on a jersey live ticket? It does not happen at any other ticketpaying event in the island so why at jersey live? If the people responsible for this carry on giving resistance to the organisers of the festival they will just walk away from it and not bother or even move it to Guernsey. I am all for having a safe festival but the amount of security involved was over the top, yes there will be trouble at an event like this but its always minor. The festival is always a success and brings tourism in so why cant the powers that be be a little more understanding and try and ruin things for a lot of people. I just hope its not going to be a case of to little to late.
