

My son was diagnosed 9 years ago and it's a nightmare having to order meds every month from CAMHS and then having to go collect them especially as I work out west from 8.30-4.30 every day.

Was great when they opened at weekends.

I think it should go to shared care with GP but my biggest concern with this is the cost each time to get a new script.

My son is about to turn 18 and is looking at moving out of home with support but a lot of that support will fall on me.

Medication is the hardest thing to get right when they are trying to be independent.
