SOLID WASTE STRATEGY (P.95/2005): FOURTH AMENDMENTS

At the end of paragraph (a)(iii) add the words –

“but that kerbside collections should only be introduced if the ‘bring bank’ system is not successful in increasing recycling”.

CONNÉTABLE OF ST. OUEN

REPORT

The Connétables fully support the principle of recycling. The success of recent newspaper ‘bring bank’ collection points introduced by the Environment and Public Services Committee shows that the public are also supportive of recycling.

However, the Environment and Public Services Committee considers that its recycling target can only be met if there is a kerbside collection. The Connétables do not share this view and believe that, if sites are conveniently located, an increasing amount of waste will be recycled as the public become accustomed to the ‘bring bank’ method of disposal.

The ‘bring bank’ system of disposal is an accepted way of life in many other countries including France. At recent Parish events with our twinned regions the culture of recycling has been evident, with guests automatically looking for the appropriate collection point for refuse. To achieve such a change in behaviour locally will require greater promotion and education together with ‘bring bank’ collection points being conveniently located around the Island.

The Comité would also point out that there is currently no kerbside collection of glass in the Parish of St. Helier and glass collection is successfully achieved entirely through a ‘bring bank’ system.

These examples serve to support the view that recycling targets could be achieved through ‘bring bank’ systems together with enhancing public awareness and education of the benefits of recycling.
