

Dear Deputy Bryans

Do you have any idea the extra pressure you are putting on hard working young parents. My Son and daughter in law are now talking about giving up trying for their second child. As another £4 k a year on top of their mortgage will mean no holiday or extras.

This is a cruel decision you have made. The States should save money by Stopping hiring consultants time and time again until they give you the answers you want.

Another reason children must have preschool nursery education

Effective oral language skills are the building blocks on which subsequent literacy and numeracy development is based.

Without solid foundations in language and communication skills, children run the risk of school failure, low self-esteem and poor social skills. Yet up to 80% of children in some areas of the UK are starting school without these vital skills.
