Thank you for your letter dated 7th February. I will try to give you a ring next week. I have been rather busy this week in Court, and have now to do a rather lengthy Judgement.

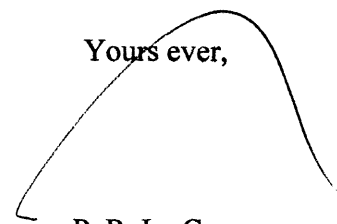

My letters and enclosures were sent to you to widen the discussion, as, as far as I know, the particular comments and points raised in them, have not been considered or put to the members or the Committee anywhere else.

They were designed to be helpful and to broaden the discussion so that members might make up their own minds after consideration.

As the issue has, despite the vote, seemingly come on to the front burner again, I should be grateful if you would circularise my letters together with their enclosures. If you are not able to do so I would be very happy to do this, but would ask you for the names and addresses of the other producers.

With kind regards.

Yours ever,
