It is estimated by the Agriculture and Fisheries Department that the amendments of the Deputy of St. Martin will increase the administration costs of the proposed Animal Welfare (Jersey) Law, above an amount that could be absorbed within the existing Agriculture and Fisheries Department's resources. The Finance and Economics Committee would request that if additional resources are required for the purpose of administering these amendments, that they are met from the existing cash limit of the Economic Development Committee until such time as permanent additional funding can be assessed against other priorities within the Fundamental Spending Review process.
