Economic Affairs Scrutiny Panel,

Dear Sirs,

I have enjoyed the use of a small open boat operating from Greve-de-Lecq for at least fifty years, as most leisure fishermen mainly at weekends, when I was fortunate enough to have a good catch, it was shared with family and friends. I believe it would be most unfair to pass a law restricting the size of catches by amateur fishermen.

On the other hand commercial fishermen who today with all the modern aids and the use of trawlers return huge catches which should be controlled if we wish to protect our local fish stocks for the future.

Possibly the next law to be considered could stop gardeners from growing their fresh vegetables to protect the Super Markets profits!!

Yours Faithfully,
J. B. Wilkins.
