DRAFT LEGAL DEPOSIT (JERSEY) LAW 2007 (APPOINTED DAY) ACT 200-

REPORT

The Legal Deposit (Jersey) Law 2007 (P.90/2006) was adopted by the States on 26th September 2006. This new legislation requires any person who publishes a work in the printed medium in Jersey to deposit a copy of the work with the Jersey Library. This ensures that works published in Jersey will become part of Jersey's cultural heritage and will be preserved for the benefit of present and future generations. An Appointed Day Act has been prepared to enable the States to implement the Law with effect from 1st June 2008.

The Appointed Day Act is being presented to the States for their consideration at the same time as the Legal Deposit Regulations. The effect of the latter will be to modify the effect of the Legal Deposit (Jersey) Law 2007 and describe how the Law will be applied. In particular, the Regulations will –

1. extend the law to include works published in electronic form but excluding those published only on the Internet;
2. identify certain items that are exempt from the duty to deposit.

The Regulations, if approved, will be applied on the day the Legal Deposit (Jersey) Law 2007 comes into force.

Financial and manpower implications

There are no additional financial or manpower implications for the States arising from the adoption of this Appointed Day Act.

Explanatory Note

This Act would commence the Legal Deposit (Jersey) Law 2007 on 1st June 2008. The Law (P.90/2006) was adopted by the States on 26th September 2006.
