Introduction

Senator P.F. Horsfall, President of the Policy and Resources Committee, and Mr. J. Mills, Chief Executive, Policy and Resources Department, attended the inaugural summit level meeting of the British-Irish Council held in London on 17th December 1999. The following communiqué was issued after that meeting.

COMMUNIQUÉ

Inaugural Summit of the British-Irish Council

The British-Irish Council established under the Good Friday Agreement held its inaugural summit meeting today in London. The British and Irish Governments were represented by the Prime Minister, The Rt. Hon. Tony Blair MP, who also chaired the meeting and by the Taoiseach, Mr. Bertie Aherne TD.

The devolved administrations were represented by The Rt. Hon. Donald Dewar MP, MSP, First Minister, Scottish Executive; The Rt. Hon. Alun Michael, JP, MP, AM, First Secretary of the National Assembly for Wales; The Rt. Hon. David Trimble MP, MLA, First Minister, and Mr. Seamus Mallon, MP, MLA, Deputy First Minister, Northern Ireland Executive Committee.

The Isle of Man was represented by Hon. Donald Gelling MHK, Chief Minister of the Isle of Man Government; Jersey was represented by Senator Pierre Horsfall, President of the States of Jersey Policy and Resources Committee; and Guernsey was represented by Conseiller Laurie Morgan, President of the States of Guernsey Advisory and Finance Committee.

A full list of delegation members is attached.

The British-Irish Council will be a forum for its members to exchange information, discuss, consult and endeavour to reach agreement on co-operation on matters of mutual interest within their respective competencies.

The members of the Council were agreed that its establishment was an important step in the implementation of the Good Friday Agreement, and would serve to promote the further development of the network of relationships between the peoples they represent. The Taoiseach and the Prime Minister expressed their confidence that the Council would build on the excellent working relationship which the two Governments have long enjoyed. The establishment of the British-Irish Council was particularly appropriate now, in view of the opportunities presented both by the new environment created by the Good Friday Agreement, and the advent of extensive devolution in the United Kingdom.

At its first meeting the Council agreed a Memorandum on its working procedures. It adopted an initial list of issues for early discussion in the BIC and also decided which administrations would take the lead in each sectoral area -

Topic	Lead administration
Drugs	Irish Government
Social inclusion	Scottish Executive and Cabinet of National Assembly for Wales
Environment	British Government
Transport	Northern Ireland Executive Committee
Knowledge economy	Jersey

In addition, the Council agreed an indicative list of other issues suitable for the Council's work, including areas which members are already taking forward bilaterally -

- agricultural issues such as plant quarantine; rural development and rural depopulation; the development of renewable raw materials and energy crops; salmon fisheries; sea fisheries and aquaculture;
- health issues;
- regional issues: including links between cities, towns and local districts;
- consideration of interparliamentary links (noting paragraph 11 of the Memorandum on Procedural Guidance);
- energy issues;
- cultural issues;
- tourism;
- sporting activity;
- education issues;
- approaches to European Union issues;
- minority and lesser-used languages;
- prison and probation issues.

The Council agreed to hold its next summit in Dublin in June 2000 and further agreed that that meeting would focus on the issue of drugs.
